See you when the snow flies!
—Greg DeHaven, Alpine III, Adaptive I, Children’s Specialist 2; Mt. Hood Meadows, OR

The new Alpine Technical Manual is the best version yet. The use of the QR codes to link video clips is awesome.

What a great use of technology! The video clips should really benefit the new instructor to visually see the movements as you read. I have read every manual since 1966 and this one is really a standout. Great job and congratulations to everyone involved in the development of this manual.

—Thomas Hanske, Alpine Level III, Children’s Specialist 2; Blizzard Ski & Snowboard School, MN

_The Matrix has been an invaluable tool for me. I can sit for hours — 24/7, 365 days a year — and learn. I also use the PSIA-AASI YouTube Channel and refer it to others when they ask a “how to” question._

—Deborah Fergus, Alpine Level III; Big Powderhorn Mountain, MI

_The 32 Degrees magazine offers me a window into how the best instructors in the country, across disciplines, are teaching. The articles fundamentally challenge my thinking about teaching and riding on a philosophical level._

—Mike Ma, PSIA-AASI Adaptive Team; Mount Snow, VT

PSIA-AASI has given me so much that has translated to my “regular life.” I can’t think of another professional organization that blends so much opportunity, good times, and benefits for its members. For new members: you get out what you put in.

—Shannon Rucker, Alpine Level II, Snowboard Level I; Children’s Specialist 2; Freestyle Specialist I; Liberty Mountain, PA

Social media is the easiest way to stay in touch with members I’ve worked with. I have been booked as a direct result of social media use and the visibility gained through PSIA-AASI.

Social media is important, both individually, and as a team.

—Jonathan Ballou, PSIA Alpine Team

I now have friends all over the country from PSIA and AASI – I expect to see someone I know no matter what ski area I go to.

—Grant Nakamura, Alpine Level III, Children’s Specialist 2; Big Sky Snowsport School, MT

When you love teaching and love your sport, others love you for the energy and enthusiasm and skill you share with them. With PSIA-AASI, you’re not just living life; you’re creating a way of life that others share too.
I was a fast-footed rider with little teaching experience when I joined AASI. Moving up into the snowboard school seemed to be the thing to do. I quickly found out at my Level I exam that I wasn’t as good as I thought I was. Luckily my examiner ripped! We rode a lot, but he coached us on teaching and how to become a better instructor. That’s when I found my direction in our industry. Since then, PSIA-AASI has opened many doors for me — as a supervisor, manager, school director, as well as with managing parks and consulting for resorts on park layouts and builds. PSIA-AASI can open more doors than you can even dream of. You will learn so much about this sport, get better at it, and, if you really want it, this organization can help you find a full-time career in this industry.

—Tommy Morsch, Former AASI Snowboard Team Member

PSIA-AASI is really about personal and professional growth. Involvement with PSIA-AASI and the skills that you develop are applicable in everything that you do. You have the opportunity to make contacts across the country.

—Peter Donahue, Telemark Level III, Alpine Level III, Freestyle Specialist 1, Children’s Specialist 2; Ernie Blake Snowsports School, NM

PSIA-AASI education materials are part of a thoughtfully developed curriculum to help you achieve your goals in the snowsports industry while providing you a reliable way to reflect on and evaluate your performance both as a skier and an instructor. Resources like performance guides and e-learning courses help prepare you for certification, and the assessment process prioritizes learning to set certification candidates up for success.

—Tulie Budiselich, PSIA Cross Country Team
